

A person without self-control is like a city with broken-down walls

September 25, 2014

Proverbs 25:28

New King James Version (NKJV)

28 Whoever has no rule over his own spirit

Is like a city broken down, without walls.

New International Version

28 Like a city whose walls are broken through is a person who lacks self-control.

New Living Translation

28 A person without self-control is like a city with broken-down walls.

English Standard Version

28 A man without self-control is like a city broken into and left without walls.

New American Standard Bible

28 Like a city that is broken into and without walls Is a man who has no control over his spirit.

King James Bible

28 He that hath no rule over his own spirit is like a city that is broken down, and without walls.